Dear Dr. Bautista:

On behalf of the School of Education and Human Development of the University of Asia and the Pacific, I am pleased to inform your office that applications for admission to our two-year program leading to the degree of Master of Arts (MA) in Education for the thesis track and Master in Education for the nonthesis track are now being accepted.

The program offers four majors for both tracks: (1) Adolescent Development and Education; (2) Early Childhood Education; (3) Educational Leadership; and (4) Values Education. Classes are held on Saturdays only (morning and afternoon).

The Adolescent Development and Education major is for master's degree-seeking professionals who already have a bachelor's degree in a specific field but who would like to hone their ability to teach adolescent students, either in high school or in the early college years. The Early Childhood Education major seeks to develop educators and specialists who can effectively blend theory and practice in creating positive learning opportunities and experiences for young children to promote their total development. The Educational Leadership major seeks to develop principal-leaders and teacher-leaders who are occupying or who are being prepared for leadership and key academic and administrative positions in their schools, especially those in basic education. The Values Education major is for school personnel who would like to integrate values in their teaching practice.

We offer scholarship grants covering partial to full subsidy for tuition and miscellaneous fees, depending on the Admission Committee's overall assessment of each grantee's qualifications and potential.

All applicants are required to take the Graduate Level Test to be conducted by the Center for Educational Measurement. Each applicant will be charged an application fee of five hundred pesos (P500) to cover the testing fee and incidental expenses. Applicants should take note of the important dates below.
